NEW NOTE

To Great Britain Making Further Protest on Mail Interference

SOON WILL BE SENT TO LONDON

United States Cannot Consent to Policy

PLAIN LANGUAGE IS USED

Another Note From Carranza is Understood to Be On Its Way to Washington, But It is Not Known Yet What Phase of Mexican Situation is Touched Upon.

(Associated Press Telegram) Washington, May 22.—The new note to Great Britain making further protest against interference with American mails, was laid before President Wilson today and probably will be sent to London tomorrow. The general terms of the note were framed at the state department, but the president is including some of his own language. The note is understood to protest particularly against the British practice of taking vessels into British ports and there examining and detaining mail going to and from the United States. The American note will make plain that the United States cannot consent to the continuance of the policy to which it already has objected.

(Associated Press Telegram) Washington, May 22.—The state department has been advised that a new note from General Carranza on the border situation probably will reach Washington today or tomorrow. It will be transmitted through Eliseo Arredondo, the Carranza ambassador. Special Agent Rogers at Mexico City, has been unable as yet to report what phase of the situation has called for the new communication. Some officials believe it possible that the new note deals with the Glen Springs raid. Representations were made by the state department at that time which have not been answered by General Carranza.

It is probable that the new American expedition, sent over the line after the raid, may be the cause of the coming note.

Border reports insist that Colonel Sibley, commanding the new expedition, is already withdrawing his forces to the American side, but Secretary Baker reiterated today that General Funston had not so advised the war department. He added, however, that the question was wholly in General Funston's hands.

SMALLPOX ABOARD STEAMER DETAINED.

(Associated Press Telegram) New York, May 22.—The Southern Pacific line steamship Proteus which arrived early today from New Orleans was detained at quarantine and the health inspectors reported that one of her second class passengers had developed a case of smallpox while on board. "The health inspectors began to vaccinate the hundred passengers and the members of the crew and to fumigate the vessel."

ONLY 20 HORSES PASSED.

(Associated Press Telegram) Toledo, May 22.—Of two hundred horses inspected here today by representatives of the French government, only twenty were accepted for war service. The purchases were made by Dr. J. J. Blazot and Baron Niviere.

Memorial Services Are Held; Newark Labor Unionists Hear Ohio Federation's President

The annual memorial service under the auspices of the Newark Trades and Labor Assembly, was held yesterday afternoon at the high school auditorium when John A. Vohl of Zanesville, president of the Ohio State Federation of Labor, delivered the memorial address. Labor union men marched in a body to the high school, headed by the Buckeye band. A splendid program was carried out. A male quartet sang several pleasing selections.

Mr. Vohl's address was well received. He is a speaker of ability and is well informed on the question of organized labor. His selection as orator of the day showed the wisdom of the committee on arrangements. The auditorium was well filled.

Mr. Vohl said in part:

GREAT BRITAIN SPARES AMERICAN'S LIFE; LYNCH MUST SERVE 10 YEARS IN PRISON

Jeremiah C. Lynch.

London, May 22, 11:20 a. m.—Official information was obtained today of the reports that a sentence of ten years in prison had been imposed in the case of Jeremiah C. Lynch, an American citizen charged with having participated in the Irish rebellion. The American embassy received this information today from the military authorities.

AMBASSADOR PAGE CONFIRMS REPORT OF COMMUTATION.

(Associated Press Telegram) Washington, May 22.—Ambassador Page at London today called the state department that he had been officially advised by the British government that Jeremiah C. Lynch, a naturalized American citizen, convicted of complicity in the Dublin rebellion had originally been sentenced to death but that the sentence had been commuted to ten years' imprisonment.

Confirmation of the ten years' sentence given Lynch was also sent by American Consul Adams at Dublin.

Ambassador Page said he was officially informed by the home office that the death sentence had first been imposed upon Lynch. There is nothing in the message to indicate whether the representations made by President Wilson in Lynch's behalf had resulted in the commutation of sentence.

Ambassador Page also reported that John J. Kilgallon of Long Island City, N. Y., whose father asked the state department to intervene in his behalf is interned in camp at Stafford, England. Mr. Page said he hoped soon to secure Kilgallon's release.

WAR EQUIPMENT TAKEN BY FRENCH LOANED TO BAZAAR

(Associated Press Telegram) New York, May 22.—The unusual sight of a foreign steamship coming into port with her decks loaded with boxes and cases containing aeroplanes, hydro-aeroplanes, cannon, and other war appliances was witnessed here today with the arrival of the French line steamer Lafayette from Bordeaux.

The war equipment, listed on the ship's manifests as weighing 50 tons, and having a value of $200,000, belongs to the French government and the greatest part of it is booty captured from the Germans.

It has been loaned by France to the exhibit committee of a bazaar to be held next Monday by friends of the entente-powers to raise funds for relief work.

BRANDEIS' CONFIRMATION AS WELL AS THAT OF RUBLEE BEFORE SENATE THIS WEEK.

(Associated Press Telegram) Washington, May 22.—Indications today were that senate action on confirming the nomination of Louis D. Brandeis to the supreme court and George Rublee as member of the federal trade commission, would be important features of the week's congressional program.

A forerunner of the fight on Mr. Rublee was imminent in the senate today. The question was whether the senate would hold an open, instead of secret session tomorrow when it reconsiders the vote by which Mr. Rublee was rejected last week.

The motion to reconsider was made by Senator Hollis, of New Hampshire, and the proposal to abandon the practice of executive sessions for such action was borne by resolutions of Senators Kenyon and La Follette. The senate judiciary committee will act Wednesday on the nomination of Mr. Brandeis, most of whose friends have ceased to expect anything but a report without recommendation. This would throw the fight against Mr. Brandeis on the floor of the senate and his champions are hoping for adoption of the resolutions calling for open sessions.

The rivers and harbors appropriation bill was still before the senate today, with Senators Kenyon and Sherman intent on resuming their filibuster against the measure. Night sessions were in prospect.

In the house, it was thought probable, the naval bill will not be taken up until next week. The District of Columbia appropriation bill was up for consideration today, and the diplomatic and consular bill may follow later in the week.

Several Other Important Measures Before Congress Make Night Session Probable.

Intelligence received in London concerning Sir Roger Casement, a subject living in America, proceeded direct to Germany without touching England. He brought word that a definite date for the uprising must be set and plans laid to meet that date. This was agreed to and either Easter Sunday or Easter Monday was fixed upon. This meant that the scheme must be completed speedily.

As the time drew near it was seen that a revolution could not be made a success and the idea of an invasion was virtually discarded. This fact was not known to the Sinn Feiners until almost the moment before the fighting started. However, certain Berlin officials had given their word to assist the movement and decided to stand the Germans as far as possible.

HISTORY

Of Wide-Spread German Plot Underlying Irish Rebellion

GIVEN OUT BY GREAT BRITAIN

Revolutionists In America Implicated

PLOT'S EARLY INCEPTION

Traced Back to the Beginning of the War—Great Britain Acknowledges the German Use of Sinn Fein Organization In Order to Weaken Her Enemy Was Legitimate.

(Associated Press Correspondence) London, May 22.—This is the history as told by the authorities here of the widespread plot which resulted in the ill-fated uprising in Ireland which plunged the Emerald Isle for a period into a reign of bloodshed and destruction. It is a story to the effect that the Sinn Fein organization was used as a pawn in the game played by Berlin and certain Germans and revolutionists in America and of how the failure of the revolt was made doubly sure by the inability or disinclination on the part of Germany to carry out important features of the plan at almost the last moment. The facts given here have been gathered from authentic British sources and are presented as completely as possible under the censorship.

The plot had its inception shortly after the beginning of the war when certain Irishmen and German authorities conceived the idea of using the Sinn Fein organization for a revolt—the Germans being actuated, of course, by the admittedly legitimate purpose of weakening Great Britain and the others having national aspirations or a desire to obtain revenge for alleged political wrongs suffered at the hands of England. At that time the Sinn Fein-ers, who really had organized because of jealousy of the nationalist volunteers, probably had no definite idea of starting a revolt. However, they eventually fell victims to a scheme which was not of their own making.

The name of Sir Roger Casement appears prominently throughout the story and he is now in London tower awaiting trial at which it will be decided whether there has been treason in the acts which he has committed and made no effort to conceal. Sir Roger went to America to Christiania late in 1914 under an assumed name. At Christiania he conferred with the German consul and then proceeded direct to Germany. Coincident with his arrival in Berlin certain officials placed their influence and guaranteed assistance back of an Irish rebellion.

According to this account Germany agreed to furnish money, arms and men to assist the Sinn Feiners and is said to have agreed to an invasion of England which would prevent soldiers being sent into Ireland by the British war department. America was made the medium of communication between Berlin and Ireland. Certain Irishmen in the United States enlisted their services and captains Boyed and Von Popen, the then German naval and army attachés, respectively at Washington, together with numerous others, some of whom are now under arrest in America are said to have done their part in furthering the plans. The carrying of funds to the Sinn Feiners was done largely by Irish sympathizers in America who were able to visit their home land without question.

Intelligence received in London concerning Sir Roger was brought by returning soldiers who reported that he was going about the prison camps and trying to recruit Irish soldiers to fight against England. Then there was a lull in proceedings. The truth appears to be that the revolutionary Berlin at first was then getting cool. The Germans had grown tired of Casement. Casement himself tired to Munich, where it was reported he was in poor health. After a considerable spell of comparative inactivity the persons in the United States who were taking a part in the engineering of waiting for developments weary of waiting for developments and sent a man to see Casement. This man, an Irishman and a British subject living in America, proceeded direct to Germany without touching England. He brought word that a definite date for the uprising must be set and plans laid to meet that date. This was agreed to and either Easter Sunday or Easter Monday was fixed upon. This meant that the scheme must be completed speedily.

As the time drew near it was seen that a revolution could not be made a success and the idea of an invasion was virtually discarded. This fact was not known to the Sinn Feiners until almost the moment before the fighting started. However, certain Berlin officials had given their word to assist the movement and decided to stand the Germans as far as possible.

UPROAR

At Methodist Conference by Resolution Abolishing Missionary Bishops

WHICH FINALLY WAS TABLED

Fourth Week of Quadrennial Session

DANCE, THEATRE, CARDS

Prohibition of These for Methodists Will Be Kept In Discipline if Committee Report Soon to Be Submitted is Adopted—Northern Baptists Elect President at Minneapolis.

(Associated Press Telegram) Saratoga Springs, N. Y., May 22.—The task of completing a great amount of unfinished business faced the delegates to the Methodist general conference who this morning began the fourth week of the quadrennial session. In the expectation of final adjournment by Friday or Saturday, action probably will be speeded up and extra meetings are contemplated.

The question whether missionary bishops shall be elected for Malaysia and Africa was the order of the day, postponed from Saturday for the purpose of investigation of the possibility of entirely eliminating this branch of the episcopacy and substituting bishops with full powers.

Consideration of a committee report recommending the retention in the discipline of the clause prohibiting church members from playing cards, dancing and theatre going probably will be reported within a day or two.

The conference also will be requested to decide if any of the journals now issued under church auspices shall be combined for the purpose of economy.

As soon as the election of missionary bishops was called up, J. Frank Hanley, former governor of Indiana, introduced a resolution intended to provide for abolishing the office of Missionary Bishop and electing the incumbents to the office of General Superintendent with full episcopal power.

After a discussion during which the conference was in an uproar at times, the resolution was tabled and the conference ordered a ballot for missionary bishops.

DOLLAR

HAS BEEN DECLINING STEADILY ON ALL THE SCANDINAVIAN BOURSES.

Germany Dumping Large Quantity of American Money and Securities in Stockholm Market.

(Associated Press Telegram) Stockholm, May 11.—The American dollar has been steadily declining in value on the Scandinavian bourses until on May 10 the drop represented a loss of 12 per cent. more than half of which has occurred in the last two months.

This condition is partly accounted for by the fact that the Germans have recently dumped a great quantity of American money and bills receivable on the Stockholm market. It is believed, however, that it is principally due to the falling off in American trade during the past six months owing to the difficulty and danger in transferring money caused by the tightening of the British blockade. The seizure and holding up of mails is also a factor.

Letters reaching Stockholm today were mailed in New York seven weeks ago. As mails to America are stopped also by the British patrol boats and the letters censored in England merchants must figure on three and a half months on an exchange of letters. This makes it practically impossible to transact business in this way.

The English pound sterling has been leading the dollar downward. From the normal 18 kroner and 20 ore it was quoted today at 15.42 while still less was paid on exchange, a loss of more than fifteen per cent. Germany marks showed a loss of more than 30 per cent. They have dropped from a normal price of 90 kroner per hundred to 60.80. The Russian ruble and the Austrian crown are worth today about half their normal value and French franc is 25 per cent. under par.

TRAIN STRUCK AUTO, KILLING FOUR PERSONS

Newcomerstown, May 22.—Four persons were killed when a Pennsylvania train wrecked an automobile driven by Frank Wilson, at a crossing two miles west of here Sunday. The dead:

Mrs. Frank Wilson, Pauline Wilson, Mrs. E. E. Purdy, Lorraine Purdy.

Wilson was thrown 40 feet and seriously injured. Another daughter of Mr. Wilson, and Mr. Purdy and two other of his daughters also were in the machine, but escaped with only a few scratches. Mrs. Purdy was a sister of Frank Wilson, the driver of the car.

The train is said to have been running 60 miles an hour when it struck the machine.

AUTO UPSETS; THREE INJURED. Newcomerstown, May 22.—Crayton Norman, liverman of this town, was seriously injured when his automobile turned over near West Lafayette. William Lockard and Lloyd Tidrick, passengers in the machine, also suffered injuries.

AUSTRIA TAKING MAIN ARMY FROM ALBANIAN FRONT

Paris, May 22, 5:15 A. M.—A neutral diplomat who has just returned from Albania is quoted in a dispatch to the Matin from Athens as saying that the Austrians have withdrawn 50,000 troops from Albania in the last three weeks. According to this diplomat, the Austrians have left only small detachments to guard the towns they have occupied, leaving a garrison of 300 at Fiera and 600 at Berat. The remainder of the troops left in the country are concentrated at Durazzo. The abandonment of the Albanian front is said to be due to the impossibility of bringing up supplies.

The statement that the Austrians are withdrawing their main forces from Albania apparently conflicts with recent dispatches from Athens and Paris which stated that the Teutons were about to launch an attack in force against Avlona, the only town that remains in the possession of the Italians.

The opening of Buckeye Lake park yesterday was marred by a disastrous fire, which early in the morning destroyed four cottages and threatened a score of others, on the board's farm, directly east of the cottage stand on Observatory Hill. The loss is estimated at more than $3,000.

The cottages destroyed were the Denton-Pettors cottage, owned by Al Denton and George Pettors of Columbus; the "White Duck," owned by Charles Young, Columbus; the "Duck Foot," belonging to a Columbus club of that name, and a cottage belonging to G. W. Bennis, also of Columbus.

The blaze, the origin of which is unknown, started in the kitchen of the "Duck Foot" cottage and rapidly ate its way to other parts of the building. A strong gale from the south, carried burning embers to the adjoining cottages and within a few minutes, four cottages were afire.

Mrs. Al Denton and her sister, assisted by campers, succeeded in removing all the furniture and belongings, before the fire reached their cottage. Four members of the "Duck Foot" club were out fishing at the time and their furniture and clothing were lost. The "Duck Foot" cottage and the longing to Mr. Bennis were under fire, having just been completed by the contractors. Mr. Bennis painting the floor in the kitchen, his cottage and would have turned the keys over today to the new owners. Mr. Young also was putting finishing touches on the "White Duck," preparatory to renting it today.

Campers broke into the "Duck Foot" cottage in an attempt to distinguish the blaze, but the fire drove the party out in a few minutes. The cottages belonging to the Reichard, former Newark miller, Mrs. Broyles of Columbus, saved from the conflagration after a hard fight by campers formed a bucket brigade and removed water on the roofs of the cottages. The fire was discovered at 10:30 and the four cottages were in ashes. The buildings could be saved by the Dentons were piled along the path leading to the cottages and the owners packed up and went to their homes in Columbus.

All four cottages destroyed, just recently completed and these still were unoccupied.

AUSTRIANS

Continue Their Determined Offensive on Italian Front

FURTHER PROGRESS IS ANNOUNCED

Several Villages Are Occupied By Austrians

3000 ITALIANS CAPTURED

Fighting of the Most Determined Character is In Progress at Dead Man Hill on the Verdun Front—Paris Claims Capture of Several Blockhouses Held By Germans.

Continuing their determined offensive on the Italian front, and extending its scope, the Austrians have made further progress in the southern Tyrol. The Vienna war office today announces that the peak of the Armentara ridge has been carried. Several additional villages also have been occupied by the Austrians. More than 3000 Italians were captured in Saturday's fighting, together with 25 cannon and 8 machine guns.

Fighting of the most intense character is in progress in the Dead Man Hill region northwest of Verdun where the Germans are desperately battling to break down the French defense and gain undisputed possession of this commanding eminence and the other key position to the Verdun fortress—Hill 304. This afternoon's Paris bulletin records the repulse of renewed attacks by the Crown prince's troops west of Dead Man Hill, where the German lines were advanced Saturday night as the result of furious assaults.

Paris also claims the capture during last night, of several blockhouses that were held by the Germans in the Avocourt wood, southwest of Hill 304, and the beating off of German attempts to recapture the Haudremont quarry, east of the Meuse, near Douaumont, which the French took yesterday.

The German steamer Worms of 4428 tons, which left Sweden several days ago for Germany, is missing and is believed to have fallen victim to one of the allied submarines now operating in the Baltic.

Violent cannonading has been heard in the Baltic off the Swedish coast, according to a news agency dispatch today, leading to a belief that German and Russian warships have been in an engagement in those waters.

The British forces in the Soudan are reported through Constantinople to have met with a defeat in a battle with rebellious tribesmen in the province of Darfur.

Possibly because these forces were needed in pushing the offensive against the Italians, the Austrians are reported to have withdrawn 50,000 troops from Albania.

GUN CREWS' RECORD.

(Associated Press Telegram) San Diego, Calif., May 22.—Forty-seven hits out of 65 shots at a range of 1300 yards was the record made by the 3-inch gun pointers of the cruiser Pittsburgh at the elementary practice in torpedo defense on the drill grounds of this harbor last week. It was announced today. The firing was done at night under conditions approximating those prevailing in actual warfare.

GRANVILLE PAYS HER HOMAGE TO CARNIVAL QUEEN

SHEPARDSON FIELD DAY WAS OBSERVED MOST FITTINGLY SATURDAY.

Chapter Houses Hospitably Thrown Open to Entertain Carnival Visitors—Granville News.

[Special to The Advocate] Granville, May 22.—The events of the long anticipated carnival on Shepardson Campus took place, as scheduled, Saturday forenoon, May 20, beginning promptly at 9:30 o'clock, without a hitch in the admirably planned program. In fact, since the first Shepardson College Field Day from which all men were excluded, this year's carnival was the most efficiently managed and the most enjoyable. It was a great improvement to have the stage of operations free from the usual crowding in of those anxious to be in the front row, and the present seating arrangements afforded the proper perspective for the performers and gave the spectators all an equal advantage.

The weather during the forenoon was ideal and the campus was a dream of fair maidens. The picturesque costumes of Maid Marian and her attendants, and of Robin Hood and his followers, as they were grouped under a magnificent old elm, ready for the crowning of the queen, appealed to the imagination. The beautiful woodland scene, instinct with grace and light, and floated across the green enclosure was a pleasure to the eye. Dressed in green of some gauzy texture of classic simplicity, she danced nearer and nearer to the queen until poised before her for an instant she placed the garland of white flowers upon her head, then sank in graceful obeisance, at her feet.

The program was well arranged with due regard for climax in effects, each dance being the best until the Greek dance by the aesthetic class really captured the lure. It was, possibly, the most beautiful, as well as the most graceful of the dances, unless the snow storm dance might be excepted. The children in their Dutch dances made a great hit as did the Forsters in the Morris dance. The two jesters, Fisher Davis and S. K. Chuseman, furnished unlimited entertainment which the youthful contingent received with shouts of appreciation.

Miss Katherine Olney, as queen, carried her honors with charming dignity, her attendants Helen Olney, Dorothea Lapp and Alma Brumback adding greatly to the beauty of the group in their picturesque and becoming costumes. Robin Hood in the person of Don Ladd was resplendent, and he graciously distributed the awards which were announced by Will Scripps and Gloyd Stankard Jack of the Green is known as Denison as John Bjelke and Little John as Earl Marsh. The woodland sprite was Josephine Darrow.

FASHION ART LEAGUE IS PUT TO ROUT; COAST BATHING GIRLS GO SLEEVELESS

"Knees may show, but elbows are taboo," was the mandate of the Fashion Art League to the bathing girls of southern California. But the girls are defying the league. school girls attended the Shepardson (carnival) Saturday forenoon and after a picnic luncheon remained for the events on Beaver Field.

Among the hundreds seated and standing on Shepardson Campus Saturday morning it was impossible to gain even a passing glimpse of all the out of town visitors. Many were present from Newark, among them being Superintendent and Mrs. Wilson Hawkins, Miss Bergquist, physical director, Mrs. Norrell, Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. C. H. Spencer, Mrs. A. A. Stasel, Miss Sara Stasel, Miss Fred Evans.

The illustrated lecture on Japan in the Baptist church Sunday evening May 21, by Rev. S. W. Hamblen was thoroughly enjoyed by an unusually large congregation. The services were conducted by the Senior B. Y. P. U. and many young people were present. The address was interesting, instructive and inspiring, the pictures well selected, clear and many of them beautiful. Mr. Hamblen who has been a resident of Japan for many years presented many phases of life in that country which with its imperial line, unbroken for two thousand six hundred years he described as only a young nation after all. He believes thoroughly in the good will and sincerity of the Japanese for the United States, and is convinced that if these amicable relations are ever changed it will be because of the fear and distrust of the politicians of our own country. Mr. Hamblen is a scholar and an observer as well as a worker in the vineyard, and his lecture was a valuable contribution to the season's offerings.

The fraternal houses were all hospitably thrown open to friends during the carnival and all of them entertained many guests for Sunday dinner.

Beta Theta Pi had as Sunday guests, Miss J. N. Palmer, Zanesville; Mrs. C. M. Schock, Norwalk; Mrs. T. L. Olney, Cleveland; Miss Dorothy Wickenden, Toledo; Miss Ruth Allen, Dayton; Miss Annetta Eldridge, Franklin; Miss Katherine Olney, Helen Olney, Ruth Wickenden, Ruth Eldridge, Juliet Barker, Sara Palmer of Shepardson college. For luncheon Saturday noon this hospitable chapter entertained Mrs. C. B. Willis, Miss Lene Willis, Washington C. H., Mrs. C. M. Schock, Norwalk; Mrs. F. A. Jones, Miss Ruth P. Jones, Middletown; Mrs. Cora K. Roether, William R. Kuhns, Toledo; Misses Kathryn Stout, Dorothy McCann, Josephine McCann and Vashu Jones, Dayton.

Guests of Beta Theta Pi on Saturday evening were Mrs. C. M. Shon, Norwalk; Mrs. F. A. Jones, Middletown; Miss J. N. Palmer, Zanesville; Misses Ruth Allen, Dayton, Annetta Eldridge, Franklin, Dorothy Wickenden, Toledo; Gertrude Smith, Cleveland; Ruth E. Jones, Middletown; and Harriett Sweetland, Katherine Wood, Ruth Wickenden, Ruth Eldridge, Sara Taylor, Vashu Jones, Sara Palmer, Bernice Brown, Evelyn Cathcart, Madeline Edgerly, Louise Mack, Juliet Barker, Kathleen Wellwood of Shepardson college.

Miss Emily Colwell and Miss Arnold of Columbus spent the week-end at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Colwell in South Prospect street.

Mr. George Stuart who has been visiting relatives in Mechanicsburg has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Jones left this morning for their home in Lucasville, after a fortnight's visit by Mrs. Jones at Monomay Place with her mother, Mrs. Holderman, and her aunt, Miss Jones. Mr. Jones spent the week-end at Monomay Place.

Kappa Sigma entertained at a luncheon of 50 covers Saturday noon at the chapter house in Shepardson Court and with a chicken dinner at Hutchinson's farm on North street. For favors each lady received a silver tating shuttle.

Scamorie club gave a beautifully appointed garden party at their home in West Broadway. The grounds were decorated with hundreds of Japanese lanterns.

The Gamma Delta entertained the mother Saturday noon and evening. Silver souvenir spoons were the favors for the dinner.

COX WAS RICH; ESTATE WILL RUN INTO MILLIONS

[Associated Press Telegram] Cincinnati, May 22.—With theatrical men and political leaders from every part of the country in attendance, the funeral of the late George B. Cox was held from his home here today. Preceding the services at the home, services were held by the local lodge of Elks of which the deceased was a member. Hugo Eisenlohr of this city officiated.

While there has been no search for such a document it is believed by Mr. Cox's personal attorney, Benjamin Heidensfeld that there is no will of George B. Cox in existence. Under the law," said Mr. Heidensfeld, "the widow will receive the entire estate in case there is no will and I do not believe one will be found."

Those familiar with Mr. Cox's business affairs today estimated that his estate will run into the millions.

MAKING CHILDREN EAT

Nothing is ever gained by forcing a child to eat when it refuses food. Make sure that nothing is being eaten between meals to destroy the natural appetite and if your growing child does not have a healthy craving for good, honest food at mealtimes there is something the matter. Threats of punishment if the child does not eat will not correct the difficulty.

A fitful appetite in a growing child, especially if the patient is pale, languid, nervous, irritable, and without ambition, usually means that the blood is thin. A non-alcoholic tonic such as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is demanded. During her teens a girl lays the foundation for her future health. Lack of blood at this time may rob her of robust, healthy womanhood. It is of the greatest importance to administer to girls who grow pale and weak a safe tonic and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills meet every requirement of the most careful mother. They make the blood rich and red and it carries renewed health and strength to every part of the body.

Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Send today to the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., for the book, "Building Up the Blood." It is free.

VERDUN BATTLE MOST STUBBORN OF ENTIRE WAR

CRITICS AGREE THAT DEAD MAN'S HILL IS KEY TO THE SITUATION.

German Hurdled 40,000 Men Backed by Sixty Batteries to Retain Captured Trenches.

[Associated Press Telegram] Paris, May 22.—(15 a. m.)—The battle of Verdun the longest and most bitterly contested individual struggles of the war enters on its fourth month today. The Germans, with characteristic patience and stubbornness, are hammering at Dead Man's Hill where the most furious and bloody fighting of the three months' conflict has taken place. Clinging desperately to the trenches that they have wrested from the French on the lower slope of the hill, the Germans hurled 40,000 men, backed by sixty batteries of guns of all calibers forward along a seven-mile front from Avoourt to the Meuse. In a desperate effort to seize the coveted summit.

As has been usual in this war when either side launches a well-prepared and strongly delivered offensive, the attacking forces have won initial advantages. The Germans have succeeded in gaining a footing on the French first line at a cost of severe losses. However, judging from the experience of the past, it will not be a difficult task for the French to dislodge them before they are able to follow up their advantage. Both sides will then return to their former positions to await another offensive.

That the Germans must continue their tremendous onslaught on Dead Man Hill or abandon the idea of taking Verdun, seems obvious. This blood soaked summit and its sister eminence hill, No. 104 form the key of the whole system of Verdun's defenses.

The fire from their batteries rakes the Douaumont plateau across the river. Without an undisputed possession of this plateau military critics agree that no attack on Verdun has any chance of success.

EAGLES TO GIVE LOVING CUPS TO COMPETING TEAMS

Two large silver loving cups to be given away by the local Aerie of Eagles to the winning drill teams competing here during the state convention next month, today were placed on exhibition in the display windows of the Fuchs Brothers jewelry store, in North Park Place. The cups were recently purchased by the local aerie from Fuchs brothers.

The silver trophies stand 29 and 21 1/2 inches high, and both are engraved as follows:

First and second prize cups, given by Licking Aerie, No. 387, Fraternal Order of Eagles, for competitive drill contest at the thirteenth annual state convention Newark, O., June 19-22, 1916. Won by—

The name of the winning drill team will be placed on the cups when they are awarded.

The cups were purchased at a considerable cost and are very handsome. Today they are attracting considerable attention among both local Eagles and citizens who passed the Fuchs brothers' display window.

The Tiffin drill team, which has successfully won the last three state contests, will be in Newark, but not to compete. The Tiffin team will give an exhibition, but the prizes will be competed for by other drill teams.

The Haynes Brothers' jewelers are showing four diamond rings in their display windows, which will be awarded to Newarkites in contests to be put on during the Eagles' state convention here June 19-22. The rings represent several hundred dollars.

Three of the "sparkles" will be awarded to girls competing in the "queen contest" and the fourth ring to the homeliest Newark man. The contests will be put on by a man and his wife, who come here from Elvira expressly for this line of work. The contests will be started in a few days.

A Mistake in the Policy of the Bethlehem Steel Company

Bulletin No. 1

To the People: The Senate of the United States has passed a bill to spend $11,000,000 of the People's money to build a government armor plant. The measure is now before the House of Representatives.

It is said that manufacturers of armor have "gouged" the country in the past, and that a government plant is necessary to secure armor more cheaply. The mistake of the Bethlehem Steel Company has been that it has kept quiet. We have allowed irresponsible assertions to be made for so long without denial, that many people now believe them to be proven facts. We shall make the mistake of silence no longer. Henceforth we shall pursue a policy of publicity. Misinformation will not be permitted to go uncorrected.

It is and has been the policy of our Company to deal with the American Government fairly and squarely.

We shall henceforth place the details of our relations with the Government before the American People.

The United States has for twenty years obtained the highest grade of armor and has paid a lower price for it than has any other great naval power. Figures officially compiled for the Senate Committee on Naval Affairs from the Naval Year Books show that under conditions prevailing just before the European war, the chief naval powers of the world were paying these prices for armor: England, $505 per ton; France, $160; Germany, $190; Japan, $490; UNITED STATES, $425.

A government plant cannot make armor any cheaper than we can do it; and—

We are prepared to manufacture armor at any price which the Government itself shall name as fair. THAT BEING SO, SHOULD $11,000,000 OF THE PEOPLE'S MONEY BE WASTED TO BUILD A GOVERNMENT PLANT?

VAST WEALTH UNLOCKED BY SANITARY CONQUEST OF PANAMA

COL. GOETHALS and US ENGINEERS INSPECTING CANAL

The United States army at more foodstuffs than is now produced in the entire world. Panama has shown the way for the sanitary conquest of the tropics and the unlocking of tremendous stores of natural riches, according to Surgeon General William C. Gorres. The remaining problem for the utilization of this wealth, he says, has to do with its fair distribution after it has been produced.

"We have successfully combatted every tropical disease," he says, "and have shown that the man from the temperate zone can live and work near the equator with a fair degree of comfort and entire safety, if he follows reasonable precautions. Our success is certain to turn attention to the tremendous agricultural possibilities of certain regions that have heretofore had scanty development, owing to the white man's fear of climatic diseases. Two tropical valleys, those of the Amazon and the Congo, are capable of producing more foodstuffs than is now produced in the entire world.

"While modern sanitation can solve the question of labor for the development of the tropics, I doubt if such enterprise could be worth while under prevailing systems of land ownership. The worker and the consumer would benefit little, if any, by abundant production. The land owner would get the lion's share. Low wages in themselves create problems of sanitation. Feudal conditions of land tenure in the tropics are quite as responsible for disease as is the climate. If I were to prescribe the best sanitary measure for any locality, I would say to double wages. A tax on land values big enough to prevent land speculation and stop individuals and corporations from getting rich out of ground rents, is the best means that I can suggest to increase the worker's share."

WILL ELECT OFFICERS OF DRIVING CLUB

The annual election of officers of the Newark Driving Club will be held tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock at the Assembly Hall. All horsemen in the city and those interested in promoting better stock are invited to be present. There will be smoker and good sociable time and it is hoped that there will be a large attendance.

DOCTOR YIELDS AND CONSENTS TO NERV-WORTH

Among the many extraordinary tributes paid to this rare family nerve tonic, recently, the following stands in the front rank. It was given to the Nerv-Worth agent at Huntington, West Virginia, a few days ago.

"About a year ago I commenced feeling badly and steadily grew worse. My nervous system seemed exhausted, felt tired all the time, was hardly able to do my work and had no appetite. I could sleep very little at night and suffered night and day with a constant pain in my back, towards the left side.

"My doctor finally told me, after I had asked him if it would be all right to go ahead and try Nerv-Worth, as my neighbors all wanted me to try it, several of them stating they had taken it with wonderful results.

"I got a bottle, commenced taking it, and began to feel better at once. I took two bottles and can truthfully say they made a new woman of me.

"ALL MY ACHES AND PAINS ARE GONE. I sleep fine, digestion good, and feel fine in every way, thanks to this wonderful remedy. I cannot say too much in praise of it and will gladly recommend it to my friends.

MISS KATHERINE OLNEY.

Most popular Senior in Denison University who as Queen of the May distributed field day awards.

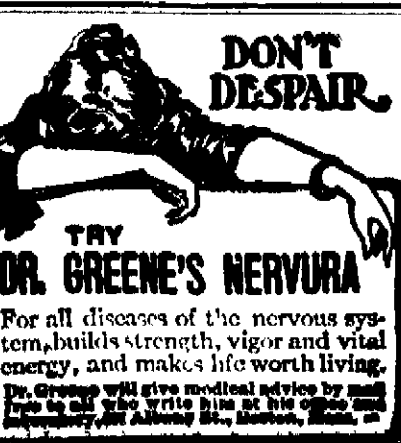

were awarded public honors were Josephine Darrow, Rachel Kendall, Helen Olney, Ruth Wickenden, Dorothy Atwell and Evelyn Cathart, though there were many others whose dancing was noted and commended by the spectators. All in all, this annual carnival is one of the privileges equally enjoyed by young and old. This half day in the open, with beautiful surroundings and the youthful zest in living, is a god-send to many, whose nerves get frazzled in the humdrum grind of everyday duties.

Miss Annabel Bradstreet, physical director of Shepardson college gymnasium, is being showered with congratulations on the success of the carnival. The excellent music for the dances was furnished by Miss Rachel Kendall at the piano. Mr. Mead, violin, and Laura Goodell, drum. The winding of the Maypole by the Sophomores was the closing attraction which never fails to fascinate. This year, interest was heightened by the singing of a chorus of girls. The immortal "Blue Danube" set to "Springtime" words furnished ideal lift and rhythm for the dancers.

ESTABLISHED IN 1820

Entered as Second Class Matter
March 10, 1882, at the postoffice at Newark, Ohio, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Candidates.

Beginning Monday, June 8, sixty days before the primary election,
the Advocate will begin the announcement of candidates' names in the usual manner. Following established custom, the names of the candidates will appear under the title of the office to which each aspires and nothing but the name and address will be published in that column, except the words "second term" may be used when the candidate is seeking renomination for his second term. The names rotating daily will appear in each issue of the Advocate from June 8 to August 8, the date of the primary election.
The usual charge of $2 a line will be made. In every instance payment must be made with the order for insertion of the announcement.

Candidates who desire to use advertising space in this newspaper
prior to or following the August primary election may do so, the charge for such service being one cent a word for reading notices or 25 cents an inch each insertion for display announcements. Advertising space may be used now or at any time during the campaign but the announcement of candidates' names
grouped under the title of the office will not begin until June 8.

Ohio Campaign Issue.

In view of continued campaign
statements made by Governor Willis,
who has been daily on the stump
since February, it appears that the political falsity of 1914 is to be repeated in 1916. Unable to show a single act of his administration which points to executive ability, the governor hopes by much repetition of misstatement to again make the people of Ohio believe that which is not true.

The other day a representative of the Scripps-McRae league of newspapers asked former Governor Cox, among other things, what should be the issues of the campaign. This was his reply:

"The leading issue, in my judgment
at least, will be whether the governor of the state or a candidate for that position should practice common honesty with the voters. It is known now by everyone who seeks and values the truth, whether certain representations of the campaign of 1914 were false or true.
This feature will overshadow everything else."

The public statements of Governor Willis in fact make this an issue of even greater importance than the admitted incompetency and inefficiency of the present chief executive.
The claim of savings effected by Willis is met by the official records which show that he has actually spent more money by nearly three millions than did his predecessor,
and yet there is a balance accounted for by the Republican state treasurer which still stands to brand the lie upon the campaign statement of 1914 that the state treasury was bankrupt. The claims of reduced salaries is not borne out by facts

but is confronted with the evidence that the governor successfully resisted the effort to reduce his own pay and that of his immediate subordinates. The claim of legislative reforms is met by the Cass muddle and the mudholes it produced: by the increase of tax rates in nearly every sub-division of the state with the tendency to the exclusive land tax; by the broken promises to labor and the repeal of laws it took labor thirty years to get; by the assault on the workmen's compensation law;
by the civil service frauds so palpable that it is assailed by members of the legislature which was forced to pass it for the raid on the public service; by the agricultural board
law which made forty jobs for politicians where but five grew before,
and which cost the state thousands of dollars to make up deficits of its first year. And so on indefinitely might the Willis administration be arraigned. False in one thing, false in all. By continued disregard of truth it hopes again to fool the people and live anew to shame the state.

Tuberculosis.

Poverty and tuberculosis—tu-bererculosis and poverty! These are the essential facts which force themselves to the attention of every investigator who faces the problem of that disease. The tenement house district of Cincinnati yields a tuberculosis morbidity just three times as great as the areas where better housing prevails. In 197 families in which tuberculosis existed
the average monthly income for a family of four was approximately $57. After paying the prorata share for food and rent, a balance of $5.13 remained for each individual to meet all other expenses. Such a low subsistence level works like black magic in the spread of tu-bererculosis. Moreover, and this is a point over which the public should ponder, the home of the average wage earner was found to be far less sanitary than the average factory and workshop. In regard to all the factors which make for healthful
living, ventilation, sufficient light,
proper temperature, and freedom from overcrowding, the score was in favor of the factory in nearly every instance.

The city of Cincinnati realized that her tuberculosis death rate was 50 percent above the average and that it had failed to manifest a tendency to decline. She felt no qualms in making this admission. Rather, she determined that she would learn why, with an efficient health department and favorable climatic influences, she was suffering from twice the mortality from that disease
as her neighbor, Pittsburgh. Accordingly the United States Public Health Service was requested to make a thorough study of the situation and submit a report. To show that something more than mere academic interest obtained, 19,932 workers in 154 factories of the city voluntarily submitted to a physical examination.

The conclusions reached, point directly to the close connection between poverty and tuberculosis. The great factor underlying the entire problem was seemingly that of economic conditions. One-sixth of all tuberculosis cases came from cheap lodging houses. Alcoholism was a prominent cause, and often accelerated the course of the disease. Occupational hazards and bad working conditions were apparently responsible for about 20 percent of the cases, but in the majority of instances these hazards were not necessarily inherent in the occupation.
Previously tuberculosis in the family

occurred in practically a third of all the cases investigated. Dissipation, overcrowding, bad housing, and inmate lack of personal responsibility,
were also listed as causes.

An interesting feature of the report, and one which has not previously been dwelt upon in studies
of this character, relates to the effect of immigration and the rate of growth of the population of a city upon the tuberculosis death rate. It is shown that cities with a population composed largely of racial stock
having a limited resistance to tuberculosis are subject to a high mortality rate from that disease, while centers having a slow rate of population increase are likewise subject to a high tuberculosis rate. The evidence is submitted in a comparative table covering sixteen American cities. Almost without exception those with a high percentage of Irish, Scandinavian and German stock, and those in which the negro population is relatively large, have a correspondingly high mortality;
while those where the Italian and Jewish element is proportionately great have a low tuberculosis death rate. Similarly, such cities as Detroit and Cleveland, with high rates of population increase, show a low tuberculosis mortality, while Cincinnati and Baltimore with a relatively small population increase
have a high tuberculosis rate.
Doubtless the true explanation of this discrepancy is that advanced by the authors, namely, that where the population increase is rapid new buildings are erected to take the place of old insanitary structures
and better housing conditions prevail.

The Gallingered Senate.

(New York World.)

Popular election, not yet fully effective, has failed to remove from the Senate of the United States its most objectionable feature. The so-called "courtesy" of that body still persists, a reminder of the dark ages
of spoils and intrigue.
George Rublee's rejection as a member of the Trade Commission appears to have been brought about by a vote of 42 to 36, but in fact it was accomplished by one man, who invoked the unwritten rule that a man
appointed to office cannot be confirmed without the assent of the Senators from the State in which he is a resident. Jacob H. Gallinger, reactionary Republican, is the eminent statesman who exercised this despotic power in a Senate supposed to have a Democratic majority of 16.

At the head of the Democratic Senate, therefore, and in effect casting the vote of the House to please himself, we find a relic of standpat-ism who, during his 23 years of service, has never advanced a liberal idea. Always on the side of wealth in politics, always in favor of using the taxing power to help favored interests always doggedly opposed to reform and progress, this is the Gallinger before whom a degraded
Senate humbly bends the knee.

Mr. Rublee's offense was that as a New Hampshire Republican he sought to retire his survivor of plutocracy and privilege to private life.
For having the hardihood thus to exercise his rights as an American citizen, he is now blackballed by the Senate to please an old man nursing a grudge.

Fair Beginning for An Army

(New York World.)

In seven years, if the conference
Army bill were put into effect and were to work well, there might be in the country 1,000,000 trained,
available men—200,000 active army,
including special forces; a rather larger number of reserves; 425,000 militia and an unknown force of training camp graduates.

The number might even prove greater if one-year enlistments were made with the "excellent" rating, passing rapidly into reserve, were numerous, and if the training camps proved popular. It would be much smaller if the active army lagged at the minimum, and especially if the National Guard failed to maintain its quota.

In some States this may happen.
To enroll 800 men for each Senator and Representative New York must double its National Guard and Massachusetts and Pennsylvania must increase theirs by 140 and 150 percent, respectively. But Georgia will need to recruit 260 per cent. Nebraska 286 per cent. Texas 320 per cent, and Kansas 350 per cent of their present State forces. It will not be strange if some States fall "a short"; but this method of settling the controversy between the guardsmen
and the promoters of the volunteer plan is worth trial. Failing, it can be changed; if necessary, upon short notice.

The navy is our traditional first line of defense; no great opposition
is expected now to its enhancement.
With a stronger sea force, the conference plan, if enacted, will provide a fair beginning of a modern scheme of defense. It should be at least a great improvement upon our present
state of inviting helplessness.

Under Gallinger's Leadership.

Senator Hollis is to be commended for his purpose to move a reconsideration of the vote by which the nomination of Mr. Rublee as a member of the Trade Commission was rejected, but the prospect of success is not good. When the senate invokes the courtesy rule its judgments in most cases are final. Still, some of the constituents of the fifteen Democrats who voted against Mr. Rublee may want to know what these patriots are doing under the leadership of Jacob H. Gallinger.—New York

Agriculture In the Schools.

(Columbus Sunday Dispatch.)

The Newark board of education has decided to teach agriculture in the schools in a manner which The Advocate says is new in this state.
For several years classes in agriculture have been taught there, but now it is proposed to give a thoroughly practical course in that subject. A thoroughly equipped teacher is to be employed and will give to the work 12 months' service each year. A tract of ground is to be leased and to each boy who enrolls for the course, a quarter of an acre will be assigned. Under the guidance of the expert, each boy will be taught to get the best possible results from the cultivation of the ground. In the instruction a stereopticon will be used so that the processes of Nature under different conditions and at different times may be observed.
This seems to be practical and thorough. There is none to whom the instruction would not be both interesting and valuable, and the hope, of course, is that this offering of a new kind of instruction will attract many and help some of the boys, who are without aim, to find themselves. The point of actual contact between the schools and money-earning pursuits have never been numerous enough and there could not be a better place to begin the correction than in the teaching of agriculture.

Roosevelt's Bid at Detroit.

(Pittsburgh Gazette-Times (Rep.))

In spite of his professed disavowal
that it was such, Theodore Roosevelt's speech at Detroit, Friday last,
was distinctly an ordinary political address and in the interest of an individual candidacy though it must be admitted that particular candidacy is not as frank as it ought to be to merit general respect. At that,
the speech contained a lot of common sense, which Roosevelt political addresses do not always hold. Stripped of its verbiage and repetitions of that with which we have become familiar since the outbreak of the European war, Colonel Roosevelt makes a plea for preparedness for defense of the country, in which position he by no means stands alone,
nor is his personal following the only American group that firmly maintains that attitude. It is the Republican position, held by the leaders and the great body of the party, and in which they are as steadfast as is Colonel Roosevelt. The only difference is the Republicans have consistently disapproved of jingoism that would make for needless and inevitable war, and now the colonel has modified his attitude to conform to the true American spirit.
He has abandoned his belligerency.
He chooses Henry Ford as the target
for his shafts against the pacifists,
and it is an adroit selection. Mr.
Ford is the representative of all the anti-preparedness people of the nation and their gathering to his support for the presidency has been the most significant single movement
against the Roosevelt undeclared candidacy. By his expressions of admiration for Mr. Ford's industrial methods Colonel Roosevelt disarms
some of the resentment that his past criticisms of the manufacturer's pacifist policies must arouse; at the same time he carries his campaign directly against the rising tide to Ford favor. Whether his moderate tone will have the effect he hopes for of winning support to himself
at this late day, remains to be seen.

Spirit of the Press

Reaping the Whirlwind.

This question is on the lips of millions of Christians today: "Why does God permit the slaughter of millions of human beings?" When nations fail to recognize his sovereignty, when they disobey his law
and seek after their own lusts,
whether it be for the sake of commerce, conquest, or revenge, the restraining influence of the Holy Spirit is withdrawn, and they are left to follow their own sinful devices. We have seen what has happened in Europe. Is it conceivable that if the rulers and cabinets and councils of these nations have obeyed the divine law, they would have been shedding each others blood today
and laying half the world in ashes?
Would they not have sought methods of conciliation and peace rather than war and blood and destruction?
They sowed the wind and are now
reaping the whirlwind.—The Christian Herald.

A Year Without a Summer.

It is said that the year 1816 had no summer; that frosts prevailed and ice formed in the month of June;
that in July ice formed to the thickness of an inch; that in August
there was a heavy fall of snow; but that in September the usual fall weather prevailed. There was no corn raised, and most of the crops were failures. It is said that these weather conditions extended all over
New England, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Ohio.
Probably the facts have been exaggerated. Other parts of the nation and world had a summer, and there was food and clothing for the people. Some growl perpetually at the weather; it is too hot or too cold;
too wet or too dry. And yet a kind Providence arranges it infinitely better than we could. What a beautiful promise this was in the early history of the race: "While the earth
remaineth, seedtime and harvest, and cold and heat, and summer and winter, and day and night shall not cease."—The Christian Herald.

National Guard's Good Work.

The manner in which mob violence melted away before the organized and armed authority of the state embodied in the militia in the East Pittsburgh district speaks well for the efficiency with which the citizens soldiers handled the situation. The calm and determined air of authority of officers and men, the perfect discipline that prevailed and the unflinching attitude of forbearance toward certain acts of an irrational character all had their effect in impressing the excited mobs
and bringing them to their senses.

Sireno E. Gilbert.

Sireno E. Gilbert was born June 4, 1819, and departed this life to enter life eternal May 17, 1916. He was born near Alexandria and spent most of his life in and around Pataskala, having lived in Jersey, Hebron and Alexandria, with the exception of three years spent in Kansas. He had one brother, Oren S., who survives him, living in Newark. He was married to Jessica Alma Smith, May 2, 1870, and to this union were born two children—Anna Irene, married to Mr. Frank Kirk, living in Columbus, and Walter S., who, until the last few months, was engaged with his father in business.

His departure came as a great shock to his family and community, having been ill for just a short time. His summons came suddenly, but living the life he had lived who would not have it so. His Lord came and what a consolation to step quickly over the border of the finite into the infinite, from this land of the temporal into the realms of the eternal, away from this vale of tears into the land of everlasting joy and bliss.

Brother Gilbert was a good man through and through. His life has been a fine example of the cleanest form of temperate living. He was first of all a Christian man, having joined the church and given his life to Christ when 14 years of age. A good husband, a kind father, a true neighbor, quiet and simply he lived, a gentleness mingled with a sturdy loyalty to principle was characteristic of his life. His presence will be greatly missed by loved ones and neighbors. To his son he was more than a father, he had been a chum; to his wife and daughter he had been a cheerful and thoughtful companion and father. We know how they feel looking at death from this side.

"We know not what it is, dear, this sleep so deep and still; The folds and hands the awful calm, The look so pale and chill; The lids that will not lift again, Though we call and call; The strange white solitude of peace that settles over all."

But if we could see death from the other side it would be different. We say "goodbye" here, but not "goodbye forever." If we could see death from his side he no doubt, would say:

"Say not 'good night' to me, But in some fairer clime Bid me 'good morning.'"

Our Boys and Girls

An easy and inexpensive method of fireproofing children's clothes in spring bonfire weather is to make a solution of ammonium phosphate as follows: Dissolve one pound of ammonium phosphate in one gallon of cold water, and a clear solution is formed, in which the garment to be fireproofed should be soaked for five minutes. Then remove the garment and let it dry, after which it may be worn with perfect safety, as it is absolutely fireproof.

This medical bath will not injure the fabric any more than does plain water and is non-poisonous. The ammonium phosphate comes in a powder at about 25 cents a pound at the druggists, and the article fireproofed will remain so until washed or drenched with rain. Draperies for entertainments and amateur scenery should be drenched with this bath to safeguard the participants in crowded festivities.

Everyday Etiquette

"Is it necessary to dress a child of five years in mourning upon the death of a brother?", asked a young bereaved mother.

"No, it is not considered correct at present to dress children in mourning," said her knowing friend.

The Right Not to Laugh. If one were to accuse you of poisoning your grandmother you would presumably smile in unfeigned fashion and go about your affairs without feeling any burden of accusation. But if one accused you of lacking a sense of humor you would first of all resent it indignantly, and, furthermore, for an indefinite time to come you would be conscious of a desire to disprove the charge, scrutinizing anxiously every phrase that might conceal some subtle hidden test, emitting now and then forced laughs on suspicion. Perhaps you boast your emancipation in many fields where public opinion customarily rules. You wear a straw hat when you please; you object to the insignia of mourning; you flaunt your readiness to discuss any subject in mixed company; you do or do not serve butter at your dinner table. Yet you are afraid you may not laugh in the right places. Many a one who proclaims his right to individuality of opinion fears to assert an equally inalienable right not to laugh. Deep in his heart he dreads the withering accusation that he lacks a sense of humor.—Burgess Johnson in Harper's Magazine.

Death and Life Masks.

In the preparation of death masks the usual method is to cover the face of the dead body with oil and then apply plaster of paris. The oil prevents too close adhesion to the skin and makes it possible to remove the plaster when it has hardened. A mold is thus formed, into which fresh plaster is poured. The resulting cast is the death mask. Death masks are of course exact resemblances of the faces from which they are made, and their value is impaired only by the changes of contour which may have been caused by death itself. The custom of taking death masks is very ancient and widespread as well. The Romans made them of wax, the Egyptians of thin gold plate. A few specimens have been found among the American Indians. Life masks are similarly made, but mobility of expression is necessarily sacrificed.—New York Times.

Beaumont Greater Than Fletcher.

Francis Beaumont is most renowned for his share in writing Beaumont and Fletcher's plays, a partnership probably unequalled in the history of literature and very seldom rivaled. The Alsatian novelists, who ultimately quarreled, Erckmann and Chatrian, and the English novelists Desant and Rice are somewhat parallel, although Sir Walter Besant went on writing successfully for years after the death of his colleague. In the Elizabethan partnership it was otherwise. Fletcher, though the elder man, outlived his friend for more than nine years and proved himself the lesser poet. Beaumont was laid to rest in the poets' corner of Westminster abbey, which he has sung in such noble verse.—London Globe.

Berlioz.

Berlioz, the famous French composer, was made miserable by his wife. He married Miss Smithson, an actress many years younger than himself. She had prolonged fits of jealousy and ill temper, ruined him by her theatrical ventures and finally fell from a carriage and broke her leg, thus ending her artistic career. Berlioz bore with her in patience until she finally left him. He was a tall man, of stern aspect and very dignified. In spite of his immense musical abilities as a composer he could play no instrument except the guitar, and that very badly.

Trees in Winter.

As Lincoln walked with Noah Brooks one snowy day he said he liked the trees best in winter because then he saw them clearly in all the details of their structure. So men are not fully understood unless we have seen them in periods of leafless revelation. The bright promise of the leaf and the first color of the fruit may deceive. Autumn and winter are the periods of proof.—Tree Talk.

Different Opinions.

Professor—Why did you come to college, anyway? You are not studying. Will Harrah—Well, mother says it is to fit me for the presidency; Uncle Bill, to sow my wild oats; sis, to get a chum for her to marry; pa, to bankrupt the family.—Puck.

Stirrups.

William the Conqueror introduced horseshoes into England. Stirrups were, however, unknown to the ancients, who had posts erected on their roads to enable horsemen to mount.

Practical Health Hint. Don't Kiss the Cat. Animal pets in the home are common, and some persons are unhappy without them. Still, these creatures should not be permitted to endanger human health, and this very thing they often do. It must be a terrifying revelation to those who kiss their cats that has been made by Professor Flocci, the Italian chemist. He has found by experiment that when a cat licks its lips it spreads over them a saliva in which there are swarms of minute bacilli not free from danger to human beings. When he inoculated rabbits and guinea pigs with this noxious substance they died within twenty-four hours. And he has come to the conclusion that it is dangerous for any one to indulge in the habit of kissing cats.

EXPECT 20,000 AT CONVENTION WOMEN'S CLUBS

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) New York, May 22.—Local delegates to the biennial convention of the general Federation of Women's clubs are busy today welcoming club women from the west and south at the railroad and steamship terminals.

About 5,000 club women are here already, and 15,000 more are expected.

More than 1,000 husbands of the club members have registered with the committee on husbands, and the supply of pink tickets, printed for their use, has been exhausted. These tickets admit the bearer to only one session of the convention or a conference.

The local biennial board has issued a list of "don'ts," warning visitors against unscrupulous persons who prey upon the traveling public in every large city, and advising them not to speak to anyone upon their arrival except accredited members of the reception committee who are distinguished by yellow badges.

It is said that a single drop of nicotine will kill a rabbit in three and a half minutes.

The congressman who imagines that preparedness is going to be settled once and for all by any parade down Congress' hill is nursing a fond and perhaps fatal delusion.—Chicago Herald.

Let's Make Believe. "Let's make believe it's snowing," came the shrill childish voice from the living room, followed by the merry jingle of bells and laughter. It was such a hot day too, everyone declared it was the record breaker. The city streets and shops were deserted, and no one ventured out, if they could help it. Women sat about on the verandas and groaned about the heat, and each straggling pedestrian paused to mop his brow and remark about it. But the living room was the scene of a paper snowstorm.

If more of us could pretend that things are, when they are not, and that they are not, when they are, perhaps we wouldn't find so many drawn mouth corners and deep frowns on foreheads every day. Everyone will admit that children are happier than grown folks, and the reason of this is, they have no responsibilities. This is of course only one of the reasons. Children are not cynical, children do not dissipate, and children hold no malice in their hearts. They are seldom jealous or envious of others, and they forgive and forget all wrongs. We too could do all these things, if we only would "make believe." Beauty is really dependent upon health, and disposition. One's mode of living, and trend of thought has more to do with a beautiful face than millinery realizes. Jealousy, late hours, anger, and ennui leave more tell tale lines and ravages on beauty's features than all the massage creams in the world will erase.

Let us make believe that we are grown up children and beauty will take care of itself, when it rings from within.

The Sick. Mrs. Mabel Johns, wife of Parker Johns, who was operated on by Dr. W. E. Boyer and Dr. C. J. ## DIFFICULT TO SECURE A JURY TO TRY ORPET

(Associated Press Telegram)
Waukegan, Ill., May 22.—A jury to try Will H. Orpet, University of Wisconsin student charged with the murder of his former sweetheart, Marion Lambert, probably will not be completed before the first of next week, it was stated today. The new venire of 100 men was called, but none was accepted. James Campbell, who had been tentatively accepted by the state, was summarily excused by the defense, leaving only four men in the jury box. State Attorney Dady, it was reported, is planning to re-enact the tragedy in the courtroom, using characters familiar with the incidents of the alleged crime to illustrate the situation in which it is charged Orpet placed himself.

Chicago Grain
(Associated Press Telegram)
Chicago, May 22.—Prospects that despite lessened acreage, the Nebraska yield this season might equal the amount harvested in 1915 had a bearish influence today in the wheat market. Opening prices, which ranged from 5-8 off to 5-8 up, with July at 1.12 to 1.12 1-4, and September at 1.12 5-8 to 1.12 7-8, were followed by a material setback all around.
Predictions of enlarged receipts eased the corn market. There was no urgent pressure, though, from sellers. After opening 1-4c down to 1-8c advance, prices underwent a moderate sag.
Oats declined with other grain. Fine weather to promote growth gave an advantage to the bears.
Lower quotations on hogs weakened provisions. There was a noticeable absence of support.

Wall Street
(Associated Press Telegram)
New York, May 22.—The upward swing in the stock market was renewed on the resumption of trading today, rails again leading the movement. Transcontinentals were in particular demand. Union Pacific opened with 2,500 shares at a maximum gain of 5-8, which soon increased to 1-4 with 1-3 for Canadian Pacific. Reading showed an early gain of a substantial fraction and Lehigh Valley, St. Paul, Atchafson, New York Central and New Haven were active at higher levels. U. S. Steel's opening transaction consisted of 2,600 shares, duplicating its recent best price at 55 7-8, and coppers as well as leading specialties showed further improvement.

Irregular movements of the first hour indicated incessant realizing. St. Paul made an extreme gain of 2 points and other leaders improved upon opening prices before the reaction became pronounced. Canadian Pacific declined sharply and other rails yielded easily but more mod-

Trading then drifted to the munitions and similar shares, with gains of 1 to 2 points for crucible, the locomotives, New York Airbrake, American Car and Industrial Alcohol. Motors and copper and zinc issues were higher, but United States steel was relatively backward. Bonds were firm with B. & O. convertibles in special demand.
Advances in Harriman-Gas stocks to best prices of the current movement, with some hesitation elsewhere, featured the final hour. The closing was strong.
Ralls continued their advancing movement today on a broad inquiry, but specialties were subjected to persistent realizing sales.

The Name Cuba.
Cuba is the name by which the island was originally known to the Lucayan Indians, who were with Columbus when he discovered it. One of its villages or cities was called by them Cubanacan, and it is reported that from the similarity of sounds Columbus, still supposing himself to be on the coast of Asia, imagined that this must be a city of Kublai Khan, the Tartar sovereign celebrated by Marco Polo. The survival of the original name for Cuba is a remarkable instance of persistence, as the island has been baptized and rebaptized many times since its European discovery. Columbus first called it Juana in honor of Prince John, the son of Ferdinand and Isabella. After Ferdinand's death it was called in his memory Fernandina. Subsequently this name was changed to Santiago, after St. James, the patron saint of Spain. Still later it was named Ave Maria in honor of the Virgin Mary. But none of these names held, and the Indian name is still preserved.

Uncle Knew All About It.
"Uncle Frank," said little James, "what is the difference between 'cute' and 'sneaky'?"
"According to your mother," said Uncle Frank reflectively, "it's the difference between what you do and what Mrs. Brown's little boy does."

Anonymous Shakespeare.
Margaret Anglin had been playing Viola, Katharine and other Shakespearean heroines in the great theater at Melbourne, Australia, which had been crowded to the roof at every performance. But the time came to move on to a smaller city with a less sophisticated population, and her manager was assailed by doubts. He did not think Shakespeare would do. He proposed confining the repertory to modern plays. When she remonstrated he explained:
"They want to laugh."
"Then why not 'The Taming of the Shrew'?" Miss Anglin suggested.
He hesitated. Despair had him, but finally he replied, "Oh, well, we'll try it, but we mustn't let them know who wrote it."

"I had forgotten this incredible remark," says Miss Anglin, "until I arrived in the city to play, and there, to my horror, everywhere advertising was displayed announcing that Miss Anglin would appear in a comedy, 'The Taming of the Shrew,' by Immortal Bard."—American Magazine.

Our Mexican War.
Our Mexican war grew out of the annexation of Texas by the United States. Texas, having seceded from Mexico in 1836, was annexed to the United States in 1845. A dispute as to the boundary followed, and border trouble led up to the war. There had previously been outrages on Americans in Mexico and insults to the flag. President Polk in his message of 1846 said: "The files and records of the department of state contain conclusive proofs of numerous lawless acts perpetrated upon the property and persons of our citizens by Mexico and of wanton insults to our national flag." Other presidents had referred to these outrages, and Polk declared that "the history of no civilized nation in modern times has presented within so brief a period so many wanton attacks upon the honor of its flag and upon the property and persons of its citizens as have been borne by the United States from the Mexican authorities and people."

The Tale of a Dime.
The woman slipped a dime into the glove on her left hand. She would be at the subway in a moment, and the dime so placed would facilitate matters. As she entered the station the ring of a coin as it struck the pavement reached her ears. She saw a dime rolling at her feet.
A fat man also heard and saw it. Both stopped to pick it up. She was first. His hand only fanned the dust from the sidewalk.
"I beg your pardon," he said as he straightened up, rather red in the face.
"Not at all," she said. "I thank you for your courtesy." Then she hurried downstairs.

Seated in the train, her glowing hand involuntarily went up to her hair. A dime dropped into her lap. Then she understood.—Youth's Companion.

Infinites Fearlessly Split.
The English of Henry James is remarkable not only for adverbs, but, like Robert Browning's, for infinitives fearlessly split. Most people split by wedging in one word only, an adverb. But Henry James split one infinitive, at any rate, by four words interpolated, thus: "I have already missed my time to so much even as name properly," etc. Nor did he hesitate to stop upon that half of the infinitive which closes so many women's pretty phrase in accepting invitations, "Oh, thank you; I should love to." Henry James wrote, "We can't not accept this, and little enough on the whole do we want to." "Can't not," by the way, is very common in French, and other peculiarities of James' style also are Gallicisms.—London Chronicle.

Phil May's Habits.
The all night and next day habits of Phil May, the artist, have furnished material for many a story. Joe Tapley, the singer, said that he came across May one night and heard that the latter had not been to bed for four nights and days. He remonstrated, and May said: "Never mind, Joe; we'll make a bargain. Don't you lose any sleep on my account, and I'll promise that as soon as I feel tired I'll go to bed."

Gold Beetles.
Remarkable gold beetles are found in Central America. The head and wing cases are brilliantly polished with a luster as of gold itself. To sight and touch they have all the appearance of metal, and each is worth from $25 to $50.

SYNOPSIS

MARY PAGE, an actress, is accused of the murder of James Pollock, and is defended by her lover Philip Langdon. Pollock has been pursuing Mary for many months endeavoring to win her love and her hand in marriage, but his attentions have been very unwelcome to her.

Knowing her stage aspirations, he has, unknown to her, financed her starting tour under the management of Daniels.

On the night of the murder, Mary leaves the banquet hall in the Hotel Republic and enters the Gray Room alone expecting to meet Langdon. She has been lured there by Pollock, who has been drinking.

A few moments later a shot is heard and Langdon and others, upon entering the Gray Room find James Pollock shot through the heart and Mary Page lying in a faint beside him with Pollock's revolver not six inches from the ends of her fingers.

At Mary's trial she admits she had the revolver. Pollock had invaded her dressing room at the theatre, Langdon had come to her rescue, the revolver had been knocked from Pollock's hand and Mary had seized and retained it. She had put it in her hand bag the night of the murder intending giving it to Langdon.

Her maid testifies that Mary threatened Pollock with it previously, and Mary's leading man implicates Langdon.

How Mary disappeared from the scene of the crime is a mystery. Brandon tells of a strange hand print he saw on Mary's shoulder.

Further evidence shows that horror of drink produces temporary insanity in Mary.

The defense is "repressed psychosis." Witnesses described Mary's flight from her intoxicated father and her father's suicide.

Nurse Waiton describes the kidnapping of Mary by Pollock, and Amy Barton tells of Mary's struggles to become an actress, of Pollock's pursuit of her and of another occasion when the smell of liquor drove Mary insane.

There is evidence that Daniels, Mary's manager, threatened Pollock. Mary faints on the stand and again goes insane when a policeman offers her whisky.

Daniels testifies that Pollock threatened to kill Mary and Langdon and actually attempted to kill Langdon.

Two witnesses describe Mary's flight to the street from the hotel and her abduction by men from a gambling place near by. Further evidence seems to incriminate Daniels.

Maggie Hale, inmate of a gambling den, testifies that she was at the hotel and heard two men quarrelling in the Gray Room a short time before the murder. Her evidence seems to increase suspicion against Daniels.

the usual formality of signing his name.

Beside the letters lay the morning papers, all of them, with the accounts of the trial marked heavily with blue pencil, ready to be clipped and pasted in the office scrap book. As Langdon drew out his chair and sat down the headlines of the topmost paper caught his eye.

DANIELS TO DEFY HOODOO TO REOPEN THE COVINGTON

Defying the Theatrical Hoodoo Which the Superstitious Declare Hangs Over the Famous Old Covington Theatre, Mr. Daniels Announces That Plans Are Now Under Way to Reopen the Playhouse Early Next Month With a Musical Comedy.

WILL ANNOUNCE NAME OF PLAY LATER.

With a little whistle of surprise Langdon dropped into his seat and scanned the article, which was an interview with Daniels. Its details were non-essential, dealing mostly with the question of the superstition clinging about theatres connected in any way with tragedy, but the main fact stood out boldly. Daniels had secured fresh backing and was to start again.

With the paper crumpled in his hand Langdon stared out of the window, trying to fit this new fact into the intricate puzzle that had grown out of the death of James Pollock.

Everyone knew now that Daniels himself had lost all he possessed and had also lost the money Pollock had promised him through the death of the latter.

Who, then, was the new angel, whose name did not appear in the carefully worded announcement from Daniels?

Was it not possible, after all, that Daniels had secured more money from Pollock than anyone knew of, and chose this method of using it to avoid clashing with the lawyers of Pollock's estate?

Was it not possible, too, that Daniels knew far more about the tragedy than anyone suspected? That he had turned this information to very good account financially and that there were influential people identified with the underworld of the city who for personal or political reasons were willing to put up a large amount of money provided they could thereby silence the theatrical manager and keep him from revealing any more on the witness stand?

Daniels, Langdon knew, was ruled by a very lax code of morals and was not above profiting from the suppression of evidence that had a great financial value.

He had got no further than this point in his soliloquy, when the office boy appeared at the door, a little flushed and apologetic.

"I know you don't want to be disturbed, Mr. Langdon," he said unhesitatingly, "but there's a man out here insists on seeing you. Says he'll wait till it's convenient for you to talk to him."

"Tell him I'm very busy now, and must go into court soon. Ask him to talk to Mr. Barrett or Mr. Rogers."

The boy went out, but in a moment or so returned.

"He says they won't do, sir. He must see you. He says to tell you his name is Daniels and he has come about the trial."

Langdon lifted his head quickly. "A short fat man?" he queried, and the boy nodded. "Tell him to come in," said the young attorney, and smoothing out the crumpled morning paper he laid it back with the others and smiled, a trifle grimly.

Prosperity had already laid its hand upon Daniels—at least his clothes made that evident. He was sprucely dressed, and recently shaved and carried a cane. There was indeed an assumption of jaunty confidence about him that would have deceived almost anyone, but Langdon's keen eyes saw the harsh lines at the corners of the mouth, and the sombre anxiety in the restless eyes.

"You didn't expect to see me, did you, Langdon?" he said as the lawyer rose to greet him. Philip smiled.

"No," he answered. "I didn't hope for anything so opportune. I was just wondering where I could get you on the phone. I've just seen this morning's paper," he added significantly; and Daniels shifted uneasily in his chair.

"You mean about the theatre?" he said. "Well, it's kind of good news for me. I lost about all I had on the Page venture and I was beginning to feel the rocks when this new syndicate offered to give me a chance to put over a musical comedy."

"Who is in the syndicate?" "They don't want the names known. They are men pretty high up in politics and I don't mind telling you, in the liquor interests. That sort of fellow loves to take a flyer in the show business, and for once I was Johnnie on the spot." He laughed, and pulled out a cigar. "You don't mind if I smoke, do you? Have one?"

Langdon declined, but produced a box of matches for his visitor.

"I'm very glad, for your sake, that you were," said Langdon drily; then,

"For once I was Johnnie on the spot."

With a sudden change of tone he leaned across the desk crying harshly, "Has that anything to do with your testimony in court? Was that the real reason you came back to the city?"

Daniels winced. "That's what I came to see you about," he said huskily. "I admit I didn't tell everything that I might have on the stand. What I held back may have nothing to do with this case. I held it back," he added significantly. "For several reasons, some of which you may know."

"What I know or don't know has nothing to do with the matter," retorted Langdon, but with a change of tone. "You haven't answered my question yet."

"I'm not going to answer it," said Daniels after a long pause. "Maybe I'll have to later on, but not now. Only, see here, Langdon, I've got to know one thing; has Mary got the ghost of a chance to get off? Do you think that what's-in-name psychosis will get her out of prison? I ain't got weak nerves or anything, but I don't mind saying that this thing has got my goat. For a while I didn't read the papers, but yesterday I did and I found that—that things didn't look as bright for the little girl as I had imagined. It looks, in fact, as if she was up against it hard. As if—unless something is done she'll go to the chair."

And he calmly puffed his cigar.

"No! No!" cried Langdon with a shudder. "Never that. It won't come to that, I can promise you. They can't prove her guilty, but there are lots of different degrees of murder, and escaping the chair doesn't mean setting her free."

The two men sat silent for a long time, facing each other across the desk, antagonistic, yet linked by some thought that neither would put into words. At last Daniels spoke.

"I'm no snitcher," he said hoarsely. "I don't believe in telling you what you know and stirrin' up a lot of mud when you ain't sure it will do any good. But I'd do a lot for Mary Page. She's on the level. She didn't shoot James Pollock—I'm dead sure of that. And I won't pleased with his importance and answered Langdon's first questions with a gibberish that held a touch of the pompous.

He was, he said, owner and proprietor of a large "retail liquor house" and had formerly been "on the force."

"Did you ever know James Pollock?" asked Langdon.

"Sure! I knew Jim well. I bought most of my fancy wines through him, and he used to drop in occasionally when he was passing, just to say howdy."

"Did he ever bring friends with him?"

"Oh, sometimes. Not often." There was a conversational tone in the witness's voice.

"Did you ever hear him quarrel with anyone while in your saloon?"

"No. Jim was sharp with his tongue when he'd been drinkin', but everybody knew he didn't mean it. He was a generous fellow, too, always made up for his madness in a free-handed way. Besides, I wouldn't stand for no fightin' in my house. It was a respectable place, I'll have you know."

"And yet," broke in Langdon sharply, "isn't it true that you twice warned James Pollock that he had better look out or somebody would 'get him'?"

McGlone shifted uneasily, and his pompous air faded.

"Yes," he said. "That's true, but it wasn't particularly Jim's quarreling that made me say it."

"Did you ever hear anyone make any threats against Mr. Pollock?"

"Yes. You see, Jim was mixed up in some dirty work—"

"I object!" interrupted the District Attorney, leaping to his feet. "Not only to the question of Mr. Langdon, but to the endeavor on the part of the witness to traduce a man who is see her harmed if I can stop it, no matter what the price is."

"Thank you," said Langdon, but Daniels frowned.

"You've got no cause to thank me," he said. "I just wanted you to know. I want to be kept posted. I don't want to tell anything that ain't necessary, but if worse comes to the worst I'll tell it all."

"Is that your promise?"

"Yes." Abruptly Daniels put on his hat, and without a word of parting marched out of the door leaving Langdon staring through narrowed lids after his retreating form, as he reached for the telephone.

He was late setting into court, but whatever conflicting emotions the promise made by Daniels had roused in him were hidden by the smiling mask of confidence and ease with which he reassured not only Mary but the spectators.

To Mary, that smile and the deep abiding tenderness in his eyes were the two things that made it possible to bear with patience the weary strain of the passing days. The first shuddering horror of the tragedy had passed, it is true, and in spite of its occasional return in the quiet of sleepless nights, it had given place to a less poignant though bitter enough suffering.

With the passing of the acute agony, however, the little things at first submerged came to the surface and became a source of daily martyrdom. The hard bed; the coarse food; the lack of privacy; the limited conveniences; the roughness of the police and the suffocating sense of being a prisoner; of being shut out from the fresh air and the sunshine and the right to go where she pleased, seemed almost unbearable.

Yet she knew that the agony of her suffering was doubled by that of Langdon; that he went through vicariously all she endured as well as bearing his own burden, and so for his sake she bore up, drinking in courage from the love that enveloped her whenever his eyes met hers.

For just as the trial and what had gone before it had stripped her of her woman's subtleties and coquetties, so had it stripped Langdon's love of the masculine dread of publicity, and he cared nothing even if all those in the courtroom read the secrets of his heart.

On this particular morning, however, Mary fancied that there was a new meaning in his smile, and a light of hope in his eyes, and there was keen interest in her own gaze when the first witness was called.

"John McGlone!"

He was a burly man in a loud waistcoat, with hair that grew low on his forehead and was parted in the middle into two careful curls in a fashion popular with a certain type of bar-keeper and barber.

He showed no signs of nervousness. On the contrary, he seemed somewhat pleased with his importance and answered Langdon's first questions with a gibberish that held a touch of the pompous.

quickly, "but I call the attention of the court to the statement made by Dr. Foster, that if Miss Page was suffering from that when James Pollock was shot she would not have known whether her own or another hand fired the fatal shot. Your Honor, I am endeavoring by this witness to bring to light some obscure facts in this case, and crave the leniency of the court to continue the present testimony." His tone was earnest and the justice of what he asked was evident to all.

"I think you may continue, Mr. Langdon," said the Judge after a moment's thought. "I cannot sustain the objection of Mr. Dallas."

With a shrug of resignation the Prosecutor dropped back into his seat, and Langdon, turning again to McGlone, who looked bewildered by the battle of the attorneys, said quietly:

"I will repeat my question," Mr. McGlone. Did you ever hear anyone make any threats against Mr. Pollock?"

"Well, as I said—"

But this time it was his Honor who interrupted.

"You must remember, Mr. McGlone, that in answering questions you must use only the direct yes or no. Do not digress or say why such threats were made. That question has not been asked you."

"Then—yes," grumbled McGlone, "I heard fellows make threats against him twice."

"Where?"

"In front of the bar. He was mixed up with some men that didn't like the way he ran things. He treated 'em all like dogs, and I thought that sometime when one of 'em was full of whiskey he'd probably carry out the threat."

"Did you warn Mr. Pollock?"

"Yes."

HOW MRS. BEAN MET THE CRISIS

Carried Safely Through Change of Life by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Nashville, Tenn.—"When I was going through the Change of Life I had a doctor as large as a child's head. The doctor said it was three years coming and gave me medicine for it until I was called away from the city for some time. Of course I could not go to him then, so my sister-in-law told me that she thought Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would cure it. It helped both the Change of Life and the tumor and when I got home I did not need the doctor. I took the Pinkham remedies until the tumor was gone, the doctor said, and I have not felt it since. I tell every one how I was cured. If this letter will help others you are welcome to use it."

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush the Kidneys at once when Backache or Bladder bothers—Meat forms uric acid.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of stinging, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's recipe to bring color, lustre and youthfulness to hair when faded, streaked or gray.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for 50 cents a large bottle, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

COLLEGE RECORDS SHATTERED BY CLASS ATHLETES

Granville, May 21.—Out in front of May Queen Katherine Olney's throne here Saturday afternoon, four college records were shattered and beaten.

V. D. Decker, sophomore, from Danville, mustered some of the aggressiveness that his home town is noted for and knocked out low hurdle, high hurdle and javelin records. He won the gold medal with 12 points to his credit.

Seniors won the annual meet with 57 points. Sophomores were second with 42 marks. The freshmen scored 29 times, the juniors nine and Doane academy three.

After Denison athletes had dashed through the last event on the program, high score prizes were presented by the queen. Decker received the gold medal; L. H. Lyman, senior, was given the silver medal, having made 15 points, and Horace Feight, freshman, received the bronze medal for earning 13 points.

Sensations started in the first event Feight won the century in a 10 seconds flat performance, reducing the college record from 10 1/2 seconds. Decker continued the record-breaking meet by making a new college record in the 120 high hurdles. His time was 16 seconds flat.

Another record was manufactured in the 220 low hurdles. Decker was again the offender. He finished the event in 26 3/5 seconds, lowering the college record 2-5 of a second. Again in the javelin, Decker broke the college record by hurling the pointed pole 136 feet 1-2 inch. Brock broad jumped 21 feet 5 inches, two inches under the college record, and Thiele hurled the discus 112 feet 4 inches. This act was three feet short of the college mark.

WASHINGTON SENATORS PLAY SNAPPY BALL EVEN THOUGH HOME FANS YAWN

The Washington Senators have been playing brilliant ball of late and are battling hotly with the Cleveland Indians for top place honors. Washington fans, however, are slow to warm up this season as they take only the mildest interest in the team. Walter Johnson has been pitching with his consistent brilliance, while Shanks and Henry have been pounding the ball with great success.

Fitzsimmons Boys Force Wilkes to Go 11 Innings for Game and Leadership

The same fighting spirit which has been shown in all Capital City league games here this season was displayed Sunday when the Newark Fitzsimmons team forced the Wilkes of Columbus to go eleven innings for the decision and the league leadership.

Organized baseball here has shown little better fielding work than that in Sunday's game. Both teams vied with each other in sharp leading stunts and outside of some poor base running, on the part of the Newark club early in the game, it was all that could be asked by spectators.

Pitcher "Granny" and some splendid work throughout the game. He pitched steady baseball on the eleven innings. In addition he did his share in turning the score in the eighth inning, driving three base hit to the left field fence after Nutter had singled.

In the first five runs, Newark got eight hits but was unable to score a goal over the rubber in spite of the good hitting. In the first third and fourth, two hits came in the same inning and though these were on a occasion coupled with misplays on the part of the Wilkes, they were unproductive of runs.

The game was featured by the all-around playing of Mark Purcell, former Newark ball player. Wilkes was not with the team but Mark did enough playing for the family. At least three times he cut off sure hits. Twice he went behind Brother Joe who was playing at third, and cut off his driven out by Evans, Newark's new second baseman. Then in the ninth he robbed Broke of another safe at the plate.

Evans, well back in the grass hit Mark threw accurately to first cutting off the runner.

The hitting of Bailey who played for the Wilkes, was another feature of the game. He hit safely four times in five trips to the plate. One of his blows was a double. Mark Purcell was a close second for hitting honors, getting a double and two singles in five times up. Lefty Sider, another old Newark ball player, abouted about hitting un-ted too moist. From time to time, small grains, such as millet, wheat, canary seed, etc., may be added.

"When coping out the birds, a sunny field, sloping to the south should be selected, the drier the better. There should be no bottom in the coop, as they do better roosting on the ground. If the weather is damp, an old sack should be placed in the bottom of the coop, taking it out during the day to dry.

"Pheasants up to four weeks of age, should be fed at least four times a day. Punctuality in feeding is indispensable to success. They should not be over-fed, giving only what feed is eaten up cleanly. Fresh water should be changed three or four times a day. Lettuce chopped up in their feed is one of the best grain feeds that can be given them. They are also fond of cottage cheese or smearing, made by heating sour milk and squeezing the whey therefrom. It may be fed alone or mixed with the egg and bread crumbs. They should be kept free from lice. Should any of the birds show signs of roup the affected ones should immediately be taken away from the others.

Keep the young pheasants away from chickens or other fowls as they do much better when by themselves. Coops should be moved to fresh ground at least three times a week. The common house cat is the greatest enemy the young pheasant has. Any good poultry raiser should be successful with pheasants.

15,000 PEOPLE SEE HEARNE WIN 100-MILE RACE

Columbus, May 22.—Before a crowd of nearly 15,000 enthusiastic automobile fans, Eddie Hearne, driving a Buick car, came home an easy winner in the 100-mile Tricity Sweepstakes event at the Driving Park yesterday afternoon. Hearne finished the entire distance in 1 hour and 41 minutes 15 2-5 seconds. Wild Bill Endicott, in his Maxwell, was a good second, finishing a lap and one-half behind the winner, notwithstanding the fact that he had made three stops during the progress of the race, due to a bad oiling system, which caused his engine to heat. Kilpatrick, in his Buick, was third. The time for the winner, while not a record for the Columbus track, was very fast considering the weather and the condition of the track, which was slow at the turns, due to roughness.

be charged with gambling. Two pleaded guilty in police court this morning. The others will get a hearing this afternoon. The sentence of the two pleading guilty was deferred until the other cases were heard. Five drunks were fined $5 and costs each.

There will be an important meeting of Licking Aerie, F. O. E., on Tuesday evening, at which time many matters pertaining to the state convention to be held in Newark in June will be discussed. It is hoped by the officers that there will be a good turnout of the members. The business meeting will be followed by a social session, and something gastronomically new is promised those who are so fortunate as to be present.

Attending Convention. August Hess of this city is attending a convention of Ford agents which is being held at Detroit today and tomorrow. There are 8,500 Ford agents in the United States and a great many of them will meet with the famous peace advocate, Henry Ford.

Will Celebrate Fourth. The Loyal Order of Moose is planning a big Fourth of July celebration at Zanesville, which will be in the nature of a field day. It will take place at the fair grounds and practically every fraternal organization in the city will take part in the parade in the morning. The Seventh Regiment band and Newark's famous military band of Cincinnati will furnish the music.

Fishing Good. A number of excellent catches of blue gills, Lake Eries and sunfish have been made at Buckeye lake the past few days. Yesterday the lake was dotted with boats and the fishing was reported excellent. This has been one of the best seasons in years for lovers of the piscatorial sport.

Captious Showers. The rain which started about ten o'clock last night continued throughout the night and a greater part of today. It has assisted pasture and vegetation but if the weather had been a little warmer it would have accomplished wonders in a growing way. Probable showers are reported for tomorrow.

Season Nearing End. Lovers of mushrooms who have not enjoyed a mess of the delicious fungi will have to get busy if they wish to find any for they are becoming quite scarce. There were a few on the markets Saturday which brought 20 cents per quart.

Shed Destroyed. Fire which is believed to have been started by boys, destroyed a shed in the rear of the Union House in Clinton street Sunday afternoon about 2:30. WILL BE DEFENSE OF NEW YORK DENTIST WHO KILLED FATHER-IN-LAW.

Alienists Head Throng of Witnesses, Four for Defense and Three for the State.

(Associated Press Telegram)

New York, May 22.—Four alienists headed the throng of witnesses gathered in the criminal branch of the supreme court today for the trial of Dr. Arthur Warren Waite. The young New York dentist, sportsman and man-about-town, is charged with murder, first degree, in poisoning his father-in-law, John E. Peck, a wealthy manufacturer of Grand Rapids, Mich. Since he has confessed the deed, the prosecution believes that the defense will rely upon a plea of insanity. To combat this testimony the state has engaged three medical experts and summoned 115 witnesses who knew the defendant at different periods of his career, many of them to testify that his behavior in their presence had shown no signs of mental abnormality. The defense has summoned one alienist.

Probably the most interesting figures at the trial, however, next to the prisoner himself, will be his wife, Mrs. Clara Peck Waite, and Mrs. Margaret Horton, a young New York singer with "studio" at an uptown house. Together the state has subpoenaed 115 witnesses. Extra panels of 250 taxmen have been summoned, and it may be a day or two before a jury is selected.

Mr. Peck, the alleged murder victim and his wife came to New York shortly after Christmas of last year to visit their daughter and son-in-law. The second week in January, Mrs. Peck became ill and on January 30 she died in the Waite's apartment. At Waite's suggestion her body was taken to Detroit and cremated. Because of this fact the prosecution sought an indictment against the son-in-law only in connection with the death of Mr. Peck, which took place March 12. The very day he was to be buried at Grand Rapids his son, Percy S. Peck, received from New York the following telegram:

"Suspicion aroused. Demand autopsy. Examine body. K. Adams."

The identity of "K. Adams" has not been revealed, but it is expected that it will come out during the trial. The telegram had the effect of starting an investigation which showed that Mr. Peck had been poisoned. Waite's arrest followed shortly. He confessed that he had administered poison to both Mr. and Mrs. Peck. The death of the former was attributed to arsenic.

Cambridge, Ohio.—"I used 'Favorite Prescription' and found it an ideal woman's medicine. I was run down, dragging around, with lost appetite and strength. I used several bottles of this medicine and found it built me up nicely, and the permanent benefit was simply marvelous. I never have had to use it again. I give credit for my health to this sovereign remedy. I have given Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription to my daughter also."

Mrs. D. W. Nossert, 132 South 9th St., Cambridge, Ohio.

Thousands of women who are now blessed with robust health cannot understand why thousands of other women continue to worry and suffer from ailments peculiar to women when they can obtain for a trifling sum Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which will surely and quickly banish all pain, distress and misery and restore the womanly functions to perfect health.

Legend of Hapsburg Castle. According to legend, the ancient castle of Hapsburg, overlooking the Rhine, was founded in 1020 and was without surrounding walls for defensive purposes, a strange omission in those warlike days. A friend coming to stay at the castle so greatly deplored the absence of the usual defenses that its lord declared that before sunrise on the following morning his stronghold would be surrounded by impenetrable walls. Naturally the visitor smiled and did not believe that this thing could come to pass, but in the early morning he was awakened by the lord of the castle, who bade him look out upon the walls. He had kept his promise, but in an unexpected way. Instead of seeing a surrounding wall made of stone, the visitor saw an unbroken circle of the lord's followers, all in their armor and bearing weapons. And it has since been the boast of the Hapsburgs that the family's devoted subjects were sufficient defense in no matter what emergency.

Effect of Cold on the Senses. An explorer who took part in an arctic expedition states that the most remarkable effect of the cold which he noticed was the loss of sense and touch in the fingers. It was almost complete. "Suppose you wanted to look for a knife in your kit bag. You would put your hand in and feel round for it, and you would actually have it in your hand and not know it. It was the same with everything we handled. We saw that we picked it up and saw that we held the article; we could not feel that we had it."

He added that it was not possible to shave, because the skin became irritated and sore, while if the beard became too long it became moist and then froze into a block. The only thing to do was to keep the beard and mustache clipped close.

BIG CROWD AT BUCKEYE LAKE PARK OPENING

MUSIC, DANCING, WATER CARNIVAL, AND OTHER ATTRACTIONS ENJOYED.

Bathing Beach Did Not Open Even as Water Was Too Cold—Many Improvements.

Buckeye Lake Park, the pleasure center of Ohio, was officially opened yesterday for the season. Thousands were present for the occasion. The weather was excellent, and everybody enjoyed themselves immensely.

All lake bound cars were crowded to capacity throughout the entire day and hundreds of autos were parked both at the Maugher hotel and the park proper. Excellent facilities were provided for them and men were in charge at both places to care for the machines.

Messrs. Emmet Defenbaugh and Capt. Del Fisher, lessees of the park, were to be congratulated on the splendid progress which they have made in getting it ready for the opening day. It is true that there is much work yet to be done but they had the buildings looking in splendid shape and the concessions were housed in better quarters than ever before.

The K. of P. band of Pleasantville furnished music throughout the day and were directed by Jesse K. Mudd, a blind musician. He also composed and dedicated a song for the occasion, "Buckeye Lake For Me," a part of the members of the band singing the two verses and chorus. It made quite a distinct hit and was encored each time that it was rendered.

The new Maugher hotel and the big lunch stand did a thriving business. In fact it was almost impossible to take care of the crowds and Landlord Jones was forced to impress a score of extra employees into service. An excellent fish, frog legs, crabs and chicken dinner was served.

Both dancing pavilions were crowded throughout the afternoon and evening and splendid orchestras furnished the music. Improvements have been made at both the park and pier pavilions. The boat line also did a thriving business and visitors were given an opportunity to visit the different resorts along the shore.

At 8:30 o'clock last evening an excellent display of fireworks was made in front of the park pavilion, directed by an expert from the house which furnished them. The fireworks were touched off from a platform anchored in the lake and attracted thousands of visitors.

Capt. Blondell, noted swimmer and life saver gave a fine exhibition, performing all kinds of water stunts, concluding by blowing up a ship which burned to the water's edge. The lake was also illuminated by powerful search lights. The exhibition will be repeated by Capt. Blondell Tuesday and Thursday nights of this week.

The bathing beach did not open yesterday on account of the water being too cold. It is hoped however that it may be warm enough to start the bathing next Sunday.

There are many new attractions at the park this season and all did a thriving business yesterday. The management was more than pleased with the opening day and promise to make the park one of the best of its kind in the country, so that it may be deserving of its title, the pleasure center of Ohio.

(Continued from Page 1.) labor disputes. In other words, when an injunction is violated or presumed to have been violated, it prevents the judge who has issued the injunction, or any other judge from acting as judge, jury and executioner in the contempt proceedings. There are many other things I might mention that has been written upon the statute books of our government that are beneficial to the wage-earner, but time will not permit, so we will pass on to our own state.

In our own state we have placed upon the statute books the 54-hour week law for women and the law prohibiting them from working more than 10 hours in 24. These are humane laws and help to conserve and prolong the life of these wage-earners, and is a fundamental step in the direction of protecting future citizenship, for unless women are physically fit to carry out the great functions of their creation, the replenishing and perpetuating of the human race, the citizenship of the nation must deteriorate, and women cannot be physically fit when overworked in industry and underfed.

The Mothers' Pension law is one that must appeal to the heart-strings of sympathy of all classes. This law preserves the home and costs less to have children brought up under the guidance and loving care of mother, unto whose willing ears and responsive heart the little ones can pour their cares and sorrows, joys and anticipations and in whose presence the sunshine of laughter is not marred by a cloud of suppression.

The Workman's Compensation law is the best we believe of any in the world today. It is a highly humane law, that establishes a measure of justice to the wage-earner who is injured, and to his dependents if he is killed, in the course of his employment.

The child labor law of which every citizen should be proud, the age limit of 15 years for boys, and 16 years for girls with an educational test that provides that children must have passed the sixth and seventh grades, respectively, at that age or go back to school for a longer period, is a law that will lighten the burden and help to preserve the manhood and womanhood of the future, since through education people will be in a better position to bring about a more rightful distribution of wealth, and take over and assume those functions of government for the people that naturally and rightfully belong to the people.

A law appropriating $14,000 for an investigation into occupational diseases, that horror of horrors that causes the greatest economic loss in our country today, not to say anything of the heartaches, misery and woe that follow in its wake, and the pity of it all is that through lack of scientific study and practical knowledge, neither the physician nor patient knows or realizes what the ailment is, and the result is death or incapacitation, so that about one-half of all working people lose their lives from causes that can be prevented, and these deaths amount to about 250,000 in one year's time in the United States, an appalling state of affairs, but true, nevertheless.

To shift this blame and overcome the shortcomings of those in authority of the overings, wage-earners are oftentimes accused by the accusation that over-indulgence in strong stimulants is the cause that develops tuberculous and other occupational diseases. Granted that this is one of the many factors let us dig underneath the surface for the cause of over-indulgence in strong stimulants without the least thought of defending the abuse. Quoting from Dr. E. F. McCampbell, secretary Ohio State Board of Health: "Craving for stimulants. It is a fact that persons who work under incorrect or unnatural conditions develop a craving for stimulants. While some use tea to excess, more use strong coffee and most resort to too much alcoholic liquor. Employers claim that workmen drink themselves to death, or that because of excessive drinking they become unreliable and have to be discharged. However, a parching throat and run-down system, tired feeling, sluggish life processes or poisons, any of these produce a craving for such stimulants and the habit once formed is the most of the man; the craving for stimulants tends to take away the appetite, hence disease results. Many a good workman has become a slave to drink, lost his job and ended up an outcast largely because of the conditions under which he once worked."

In substantiation of this quotation John Mitchell, two years after the anthracite miners had been awarded an increase in wages, shorter work-day and better working conditions, asserted that intemperance had decreased 50 per cent. Colonel Gorgas, the man who made it possible to build the Panama Canal by making the canal zone habitable for human beings without undue risk of life or health, gave an interview to a newspaper some time ago, and when asked the question of what would prolong life, replied without hesitation, "better wages." His experience in the canal zone through power of directing had given him opportunity to observe and study practical demonstrations of the normal conditions under which wage earners should and did work and live, and the practical results therefrom, and when asked the number of years life could be prolonged, he gave as a rough estimate, thirteen years. Surely this declaration from probably the greatest expert in the world, is worthy of economic if not humane consideration. Recently in a speech at Chicago before the Geographical Society he stated that when the government doubled the wages in the canal zone poverty disappeared and disease went with it.

One of the theories being advanced today for minimizing tuberculosis and other diseases in occupation is physical examinations, which is practically a new problem in industry, to be mutually solved if possible by all parties concerned. Labor never will agree that the employer shall be the sole judge, in either rejecting an applicant for employment or in dismissing one that is already employed, for if this be consented to or allowed either by the wage earners or the state, it would result in building up an idle class and produce economical loss to such an extent that the drain on industry in support of that class would be far in excess of the slight loss that may occur through the physical defect not being able to keep up the highest standard of production. The soldier who has served faithfully in industry and through no wilful act of his own, is to a degree incapacitated has not only a moral claim upon industry but a natural right, "God-given," to expend his labor for the purpose of his existence and the existence of those to whom he may be under obligation and whoever for the sake either of profits or unchecked competition may hinder or deprive him of that right is not only violating man's natural rights, but is sowing the seed of state dissolution in that such unjust treatment is a cause for gradually extinguishing the patriotism and love of country that naturally burns in every good citizen's breast.

Surely the war in Europe should teach us the necessity of extending democracy to industry and through that democracy the mutual co-operation of all forces in industry by and through which our country can constantly be prepared to meet any emergency that may arise, for he it knows that the success of the war in Europe depends as much upon the farm, workshop, mill and mine as it does upon those who are fighting in the trenches.

Progress or advancement for the masses of those people either socially, educationally, or morally, is impossible even if facilities are afforded them for these purposes, as human beings completely worn out in body and mind with the only perspective confronting them of eat, sleep and work could not grasp the commonest fundamentals for advancement, even if in a mood to try which would be unlikely considering their conditions and treatment.

These same conditions we find in the United States Steel trust, the physical valuation of which property at the time the great corporation was formed was $685,000,000, and which was immediately capitalized at $1,420,000,000 "water" upon which the wage earned is sacrificed to pay dividends and the consumer robbed for the same purpose.

Basel Manley, in his report to the Industrial Commission, says: Our industrial relations are next to importance to our form of government, and our democratic institution must be relied upon to solve this great problem.

The average citizen, whether employer or employee, comes little in contact with government, but his industrial relations determine every day what the wage-earner and his family shall eat, what they shall wear, how they shall live and how many hours of his life he shall give each day for these purposes. If his individual or corporate employer owns and controls the community in which he lives, his politics, speech, opinions and sometimes even his religion is controlled so far as it is in the interest of his employer to exercise that control for his own benefit or that of the company.

Industrial unrest is caused from unjust distribution of wealth. Denial of the right of the wage-earner to organize. Denial of justice by the courts and their discrimination through which there seems to be two standards. For your illustration and with your kind permission we shall read from the Survey of May 13, 1916.

Judges and Labor Laws.

That judges are inclined to be lenient when employers are at the bar of justice is the impression one gets in reviewing the list of prosecutions for labor law violations in Ohio during the last year, as published by the Ohio Industrial commission. There were 339 prosecutions and 320 verdicts of guilty, but more than half the defendants had their fines suspended or remitted.

The vagaries of justice are illustrated further by the fact of various offenders against the law forbidding the employment of girls under 18 years of age without a school certificate. Judge Everett in Lima, declared the law unconstitutional and dismissed the case. If continued to be a good law in Cleveland, however, where Judge Penty found the defendants guilty in 23 prosecutions brought against various firms for the same offense.

The latter judge had to settle the majority or labor law violations. Cleveland firms were continually prosecuted for employing women more than ten hours a day. Cincinnati stood second in number of prosecutions. Imagine a wage-earner prosecuted eighteen or thirty times for violation of law having his fine suspended in each instance. These are the causes for lack of respect for judges and courts that I am very sorry to say too greatly prevails.

These are the conditions, my friends, the organized wage earners are trying to eliminate. It cannot be done through charity, it cannot be done through welfare work, it can and must be done by educating the masses, organization on the economic plan, and the non-partisan ballot in the political field.

The wage-earner does not want charity, neither does he want welfare work unless justice is first done. Both charity and welfare work are merely subterfuge for justice in industry.

And so, dear friends, the facts we have laid before you today in commemoration of the souls who, in their day, labored and struggled to correct abuse and injustice and make smoother the road we travel should be incentive for greater effort on our part to make smoother the road for those who follow after us.

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR CLASS TEACHER IS HELD ON SUNDAY.

The members of the Mary Cunningham Sunday school class of the First Presbyterian church, and a few friends, held memorial services on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock for Mrs. Franny Jones Bates, who for years instructed the class.

Prayers to the organization of the class Mrs. Bates was the teacher and following its organization continued the work until her death, May 11, 1915. On Sunday afternoon, the members assembled in the church and Mrs. R. R. Moore gave the opening prayer. A favorite Scripture reading, John 3:14-22, was given by Mrs. George Long. Many papers and talks reminiscent of Mrs. Bates and her work were given. Mrs. Grant Jones gave a talk and Mrs. Eva Bloomer and Mrs. J. M. Garber read papers concerning her work. An original poem was recited by Miss Marion Lumley and Mrs. Jennie Stewart read a number of verses. Mrs. Simpson and Miss Laura Jones gave beautiful talks concerning Mrs. Bates, and Rev. Calvin Hazlett, pastor of the church, gave the concluding prayer and benediction.

Result of an Accident. Accidents are not always misfortunes. Chemists discovered by research the process of making artificial indigo, but it was only when a thermometer broke in the solution that they found out how to make the indigo cheap enough to be commercially valuable. The mercury so increased the yield of a certain acid that the process was cheapened sufficiently to make artificial indigo less expensive than natural indigo.

The army bill finally agreed to by the conference committee may be said to suit nobody, yet a bill that would suit nobody was the only one with a chance to be enacted into law, Springfield Record.

COW IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION MAKES ITS YEARLY REPORT

The Licking Cow Improvement Association completed its first year's work May 1, 1916, stands third among the 17 associations now operating within the state. The association started a year ago with 319 cows in 23 herds. After the first month 133 other cows were put on test and three herds were added, making a total of 442 cows in 26 different herds that were tested during the year. Two hundred and two cows in 19 herds were on test the year through.

In the 12 months the association produced 2,153,029 pounds of milk, and 91,505 pounds of butterfat valued at $28,071.51. The total feed cost was $16,483.51, leaving a profit of $11,227. For each $1.00 spent on feed there was a return of $1.70. It cost 18 cents to produce each pound of fat, and 75 cents to produce each 100 pounds of milk.

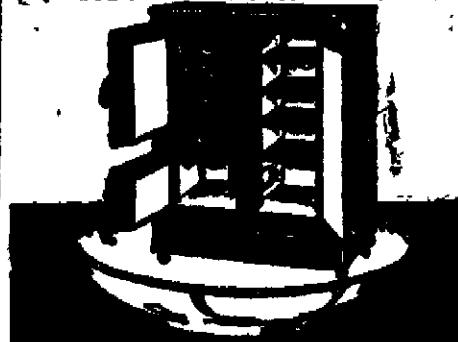

The average cow of the association produced 6640 pounds of milk with 277.7 pounds of fat. The fat was valued at $85.60, and the feed cost was $49.80, leaving an average profit per cow of $35.80.

The highest producing cow, a Holstein, produced 15,774 pounds of milk with 547 pounds of butterfat. A grade Jersey made the highest profit—$89.89. The highest average test for the year—6.63 percent—was also made by a grade Jersey. The highest milk producing herd averaged 9,687 pounds of milk per cow. The highest fat producing herd averaged 378.6 pounds of fat per cow. This herd was also the most profitable with an average profit of $56.37 per cow. The highest testing herd averaged 5.58 percent fat for the year.

Of all the cows tested the records show 45 that were unprofitable. These cows will be disposed of and the association will start on its second year hoping to be the banner association of the state.
